Interim Report 21 covering the 90-day period from August 23, 1981, to November 22, 1981, reported the completion of the majority of tests at 100% of plant load. Since the plant had just completed a modification outage in April, and has not attained significant power levels required for remaining tests, no further initial approach to power tests were performed during the 90-day period ending August 22, 1982.

Future interim reports will report the results of any startup tests which still remain in the "open" status.
