LICENSEE'S RESPONSE TO THE NRC STAFF'S RESPONSE AND OBJECTIONS AND MOTION FOR PROTECTIVE ORDER
AND LICENSEE'S MOTION TO COMPEL PRODUCTION

I. INTRODUCTION.

Oncology Services Corporation ("OSC") or ("Licensee") herein responds to NRC Staff's Response and Objections to Licensee's Request for Production of Documents and Things dated April 25, 1994 and NRC Staff's Motion for Protective Order ("NRC Staff's Response, Objections and Motion for Protective Order"). In addition, Licensee files a Motion to Compel Production.

II. DISCUSSION.

A. LICENSEE'S RESPONSE TO NRC STAFF'S RESPONSE AND OBJECTIONS.

1. LICENSEE'S REQUEST.

Any and all electronic mail messages and any other communications and/or documents, including drafts, currently or formerly embodied on the computer system of the NRC, including but not limited to, any and all backup tapes and/or disks of any such communications, which related in any manner to Oncology Services Corporation, the suspension of the HDR by-product material license No. 37-28540-01, held by Oncology Services Corporation, the IIT Team which was assembled to investigate the Indiana, PA incident and the applicability of 10 C.F.R. 19, 20 and 35 (including all subparts) to said incident.

2. LICENSEE'S RESPONSE TO OBJECTIONS AND TO MOTION FOR PROTECTIVE ORDER.

The Staff, in its NRC Staff's Response, Objections and Motion for Protective Order, sets forth objections to the instant document request of Licensee which are factually inaccurate and legally ineffective.

The subject document request comports with the requirements of Section 2.744(a) of the NRC regulations. The request provides not only the particular category of documents requested, but describes that category with exacting detail. To the extent that the Staff is unable to determine the self-evident relevance of the subject request, Licensee believes that the requested items by virtue of being related to matters at issue are directly relevant to the investigative and enforcement actions which the NRC has taken against the Licensee. Licensee's request, by its own terms, is limited to items which are relevant to the instant proceedings. The Staff objections asserting otherwise are disingenuous and unsupported supplying no basis for failure to respond to Licensee's valid request.

Similarly, Staff's objection that the applicability of 10 C.F.R., part 35, subpart G, should be excluded from the scope of the subject request is disingenuous. Any dismissal by the Atomic Safety and Licensing Board of issues regarding the applicability of 10 C.F.R. part 35, subpart G, does not necessarily mean that E-mail communications pertaining to the applicability of 10 C.F.R. part 35, subpart G are devoid of information relevant to the instant action.

The Staff also asserts that Licensee's document request is unduly burdensome and oppressive. In support of this claim, the Staff offers certain arguments pertaining to its E-mail system. Such arguments, however, are undercut by the nature of previous NRC responses and by the capabilities of WordPerfect Office software.

The Staff asserts that ". . . The Staff is unable to search . . . for documents over ten working days old." See NRC Staff's Response, Objections, and Motion for Protective Order at 4. This claim is belied by the appendices to the NRC's Response to the Freedom of Information Act ("FOIA") request designated FOIA-94-71. The response to the FOIA request designated FOIA-94-71, with appendices, is appended hereto and incorporated herein by reference Exhibit "A." In Appendix B to the Response to the FOIA request designated FOIA-94-71, the NRC includes, in a list of documents being placed in the public document room, E-mail messages from R. Joseph DelMedico from November, 1993. In Appendix D to the NRC Response to the FOIA request designated FOIA-94-71, the NRC includes in the list of documents being withheld in their entirety, E-mail messages from November and December, 1993, from Daniel Holody.

The fact that the NRC can either produce or refuse to produce, in May 1994, E-mail messages that were created at least five months ago in 1993, indicates that the NRC archives E-mail messages within its office automation systems and that such E-mail messages are retrievable. See Verified Statement of William J. Lupinacci, III ("Lupinacci Verified Statement"), appended hereto as Exhibit "B" and incorporated herein by reference, at Paragraph 5.

Additional claims made by the Staff with regard to the computer system similarly are flawed. For example, the Staff claims that there is no search mechanism in its software files in the face of the fact that WordPerfect Office contains sophisticated search and retrieval capabilities which allows each individual E-mail user to search and retrieve messages that were sent, received, or archived from the mail box of each respective user. See Lupinacci Verified Statement at Paragraph 6. Additionally, software is available which permits the search of contents of all files on an entire computer disk so as to locate a character string specified by a particular searcher. See Lupinacci Verified Statement at Paragraph 7. Utilizing such software, a searcher could specify an appropriate string and the software would list every file on every computer disk directory containing such character string. See Lupinacci Verified Statement at Paragraph 7. With such software, the NRC or other searcher, could, for example, list every file on every computer disk category that contained an appropriate character string. See Lupinacci Verified Statement at Paragraph 7. Software compatible with the system purportedly used by the NRC is available. See Lupinacci Verified Statement at Paragraph 8.

Finally, the NRC's claims regarding the encryption also appears disingenuous. Licensee, in the absence of NRC encryption software, could utilize the same version of WordPerfect Office as is used by the NRC, load NRC supplied copies of the appropriate directory name utilized by the NRC for its subject documents, and its subdirectories and hidden files, which contain the encrypted E-mail files, and read them without difficulty. See Lupinacci Verified Statement at Paragraph 9.

Given the sophistication of the E-mail related software utilized by the NRC, the staff claims that the subject document request is unduly burdensome or oppressive is simply inaccurate and should not provide a basis for evading a valid document request. Licensee is further willing to eliminate any burden upon the NRC with regard to the instant request. Licensee is willing to run whatever computer searches are necessary to achieve compliance with Licensee's document request.

B. MOTION TO COMPEL PRODUCTION PURSUANT TO SECTION
2.744(c) OF THE NRC REGULATIONS.

Licensee hereby moves the Board to compel compliance with Licensee's subject request. Such motion should be granted for the reasons set forth above.

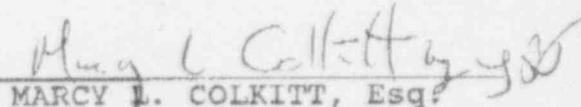

III. CONCLUSION.

For the reasons set forth above, the Board should deny the Staff's Motion for a Protective Order and grant Licensee's Motion to Compel Production Pursuant to Section 2.744(c) of the NRC Regulations.

Respectfully submitted,

XX 5. The withheld information consists of investigatory or management records that are not prepared through disclosure during rule making. (Exemption 5), Adversely Affecting

XX 5.1. Ongoing Process: Disclosure of investigatory information would tend to reveal the date and time schedule of steps essential to the ongoing process. Disclosure could constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. (Exemption 7(C))

The information consists of names of individuals and other information the disclosure of which could reasonably be expected to reveal identities of confidential sources. (Exemption 7(D))
