Dear Mr. McDermott:

I write regarding the presence of Cobalt 60, a highly radioactive material, at the Georgia Institute for Technology. I am concerned its presence poses a possible threat to security during the 1996 Olympic Games.

Georgia Tech has already taken significant steps to reduce the threat of terrorist actions involving nuclear materials during the Olympic Games. I commend the Institute for recognizing and responsibly addressing a potential security threat. However, I am concerned that an additional threat, the Cobalt 60, still remains.

Organizers expect 800,000 to a million visitors in the downtown area each day during the Olympics. An event of the size and importance of the Olympic Games presents a prime target for terrorist activity. I believe we should take all precautions to ensure that the Olympic Games are safe and successful. Please examine and address the possible threat posed by the Cobalt 60 on the Georgia Tech campus during the Olympic games.

Thank you for your attention to and consideration of this matter.

Sincerely,

John Lewis
Member of Congress
