

A comment:

A very large percentage of the employees of PECO live with their families in the area served by the Company -- eventually by Limerick.

Thus, they have a very significant interest in the safety, efficiency and reliability of the generating facilities of the Company. Certainly, they are fully confident that the Limerick facility will be every bit as safe as the oldest of the coal burning stations that received much the same reaction from some of the public when they were built 100 years ago.

It seems that some of the public has changed little in 100 years -- a few still protesting important changes having a profound effect for improvement for many.
