Dear Judges:

The following two typographical errors of omission should be corrected in LILCO's Motion to Strike the Testimony of Dale G. Bridenbaugh and Gregory C. Minor Regarding Suffolk County's Emergency Diesel Generator Load Contention, dated February 1, 1985:

Page 10, footnote 3, the quote inadvertently omitted the word "error." The quote should read as follows:

The designer shall consider an operator error as a potential single active failure.

Page 11, four lines from the bottom, the word "not" was inadvertently omitted. The sentence should now read as follows:

8502130008 850206
PDR ADOCK 05000322

There is no regulatory requirement that a plant must be designed to meet the single failure criterion when the limiting conditions for operation set forth in the technical specifications are not met.

Respectfully,
