5. CEI's current estimate of the direct cost that would be incurred in automating the SLCS is approximately $140,000. This includes the estimated costs for engineering, construction inside and outside the control room, material, completion and approval of procedures, and testing. This represents a $40,000 increase over the estimate of $100,000 given by CEI in its February 29, 1984, supplementary response to OCRE Interrogatory No. 22. The increase is primarily attributable to increased costs of labor and material since that time, and to the additional costs of retesting the SLCS and related systems at this advanced stage of construction.
