General Comment

If Texas wants it they better be able to care for it. They have hurricanes & flooding, is the site safe with that? Will post 3MileIsland & Chernobyl safeguards be in place? What distance from people is the location. With the Japanese disaster showing no end in sight, what are the safeguards that the storage is safe from earth slippage? If it becomes endangered, what plans would be in place to protect people? What would prevent it from melting into the earth & exploding? If they want it let em have it. I'm glad it won't be in California even if I think it's too close to Yellowstone!
