Dear Sir:

I am writing to ask you to not change the rules to allow nuclear power plants to do low-power testing without the placement of all the emergency sirens and other safety measures necessary for the health and well being of the many people that live in the vicinity of these plants. Chernobyl has given us a terrible lesson that we must learn from, or else suffer some of the same diastorous consequences. Please, consider the safety of the people you serve foremost when you make this important decision. Thank you.

Sincerely,
Sandra Belock-Phippen
