APPROACH TO ENVIRONMENTAL JUSTICE REVIEWS

On September 27, 2021, the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) staff held a public meeting¹ via teleconference to facilitate both a listening session and a panel discussion. The purpose of the meeting was to hear insights and perspectives from leaders and individuals in Environmental Justice (EJ) communities and from other individuals who had familiarity and experience pertaining to EJ in NRC's programs, policies, and activities. The comments and dialog provided by the meeting participants are inputs that will be used for the NRC staff's environmental justice review, as directed by the Commission in Staff Requirements Memorandum (SRM) M210218B.²

At the start of the meeting, the NRC staff stated that the meeting was an information meeting with a question and answer session. As with all NRC public meetings, no regulatory decisions will be made during the meeting. The NRC staff provided a short presentation³ that provided a brief overview of the effort. Then the NRC staff hosted a listening session of invited participants who were EJ community leaders and individuals with EJ experience⁴ to hear their insights and perspectives on the approach to how EJ should be addressed.
