Systematic Review of How the Agency's Programs, Policies, and Activities Address
Environmental Justice

March 2022

U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission
Rockville, Maryland

Introduction

On April 23, 2021, in a Staff Requirements Memorandum (Agency Document and Management Systems [ADAMS] Accession No. ML211130A07), the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) directed the staff to “systematically review how the agency’s programs, policies, and activities address environmental justice.” As part of this review, the Commission directed the staff to evaluate recent Executive Orders and assess whether environmental justice (EJ) is appropriately considered and addressed in the agency’s programs, policies, and activities, given the agency’s mission. As directed, the staff considered the practices of other Federal, State, and Tribal agencies and evaluated whether the NRC should incorporate EJ beyond implementation through the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA). The staff also reviewed the adequacy of the 2004 EJ Policy Statement and considered whether establishing formal mechanisms to gather external stakeholder input would benefit any future EJ efforts. Additionally, to carry out the Commission’s direction, the staff engaged stakeholders and interested persons representing a broad range of perspectives, including community-based organizations, national environmental and nuclear safety nongovernmental organizations, labor unions, licensees, state and local governments, and Tribal nations in order to solicit their views.

The staff requested comment regarding the NRC’s current EJ practices and ways to potentially enhance EJ in the NRC’s programs, policies, and activities in a Federal Register notice published on July 9, 2021 (86 Fed. Reg. 36,307). Although the original comment period was scheduled to end on August 23, 2021, based upon requests, the comment period was extended twice, with the comment period ultimately ending on October 29, 2021. (See 86 Fed. Reg. 43,696, August 10, 2021, extending the comment period to September 22, 2021; and 86 Fed. Reg. 50,745, September 9, 2021, extending the comment period to October 29, 2021.) Comments received in response to this request for comments, as well as other important documents regarding this effort, are available in ADAMS and at the Federal rulemaking website at <https://www.regulations.gov/>, under Docket ID NRC–2021–0137.

The staff also held virtual public meetings on July 15, 2021 (afternoon and evening sessions), September 27, 2021 (afternoon session), and October 21, 2021 (afternoon session) to gather comments from the public and listen to concerns as part of the NRC’s outreach effort. Transcripts for the meetings can be found at ML21200A183, ML21200A189, ML21280A350, and ML21300A208. The ADAMS Public Electronic Reading Room can be accessed at <http://www.nrc.gov/reading-rm/adams.html>. For help with ADAMS, contact the NRC’s Public Document Room reference staff by telephone at 1-800-397-4209 or 301-415-4737 or by e-mail at pdr.resource@nrc.gov.

Additionally, the staff created a special webpage at <https://www.nrc.gov/about-nrc/regulatory/licensing/nepa/environmental-justice.html> to keep external stakeholders informed about this effort. The webpage contained questions for the public, instructions for submitting comments, and internet links to audio versions and transcripts of the public meetings, along with meeting summaries and a podcast. In addition, important documents, including public comments, are also available at the Federal rulemaking website at <https://www.regulations.gov/>, under Docket ID NRC–2021–0137.

The purpose of this report is to summarize the comments received about the agency’s programs, policies, and activities addressing EJ. While the staff is not providing specific responses to the comments received, the comments were considered in the staff’s systematic review and the formulation of its recommendations and commitments. This report is structured in three sections:

- A. The Systematic Review of How the Agency's Programs, Policies, and Activities Address Environmental Justice
- B. Comment Summaries
- C. List of Commenters.

Review Process and Objectives

As stated previously, on April 23, 2021, in a Staff Requirements Memorandum (ML211130A07), the Commission directed the staff to "systematically review how the agency's programs, policies, and activities address environmental justice." This report documents comments provided during public meetings and written comments received from the public and other interested persons in response to the staff's request for input on the agency's programs, policies, and activities in regard to EJ. The staff received and reviewed approximately 2,470 written comment submissions, of which 693 were unique individual comments.

The staff binned comments received in the following subject areas:

- The Meaning of EJ (Section B.1)
- Proposed Changes that Would Benefit EJ Communities and Tribal nations in EJ-related Engagement Activities (Section B.2)
- Other Proposed Changes to the NRC's EJ Policy and Regulations (Section B.3)
- Proposed Ways to Identify EJ Communities (Section B.4)
- Other EJ Programs for the NRC's Consideration (Section B.5)
- Federal, State, or Tribal Programs for the NRC's Consideration (Section B.6)
- Effective Current Policy (Section B.7)
- General Support for Doing this Review (Section B.8)
- General Support for Changing How the NRC Considers EJ (Section B.9)
- Other Concerns Not Directly Related to how the Agency Addresses EJ (Section B.10)

Review and Consideration of Comments

The comments provided during the comment period identified many important issues that the staff have considered in developing its paper for the Commission. Many comments were direct replies to the questions proposed by the staff in the Federal Register notice published on July 9, 2021 (86 Fed. Reg. 36,307). More detailed information regarding the comments on these subjects and others is provided below.

B. Comment Summaries

This section of the report summarizes the comments received and groups them by subject matter. Each summary includes a listing of comments that were considered to be relevant to the specific subject area based upon the staff's review of the comments. Each comment submittal was assigned a unique commenter identification number. When a comment submittal addressed multiple issues, the submittal was further divided into separate comments with tracking identifiers. Section C of this report contains a table that identifies the commenters, their affiliation if provided, and the ADAMS Accession Numbers for the comment submittals.

B.1 The Meaning of EJ

Comment Summary: Several commenters expressed concern that the NRC does not adequately define EJ in its policies and that there is a need to expand the definition of EJ beyond looking at adverse and disproportionate impacts on minority and low-income populations. Commenters suggested that the NRC review and follow the “17 Principles of Environmental Justice” put forth at the National People of Color Environmental Justice Leadership Summit in 1991 as well as the Jemez Principles documented on December 6–8, 1996, by the Southwest Network for Environmental and Economic Justice. Commenters clarified that adoption of these principles would help the NRC further define what EJ means to the agency and its mission. One commenter suggested that the NRC become familiar with social science concepts of justice, such as distributive, procedural, and restorative justice, and apply these principles to its practices. Another commenter proposed that the agency redefine the term “adequate protection” to mean “nondiscriminatory protection” and that the NRC’s mission should not lead to disproportionate risk to EJ communities. Several commenters also suggested that the NRC follow new EJ-related Executive Orders to expand how the NRC incorporates EJ into its mission or adopt the defined terms in the May 2021 White House Environmental Justice Interagency Council Environmental Justice Interim Report. Other commenters suggested that the NRC improve its implementation of the 2004 Policy Statement on EJ and regulatory guidance given the NRC’s authority under the Atomic Energy Act of 1954. Commenters questioned the NRC’s role as an independent agency, whether the NRC should even be considering EJ at all, and the cost to taxpayers of this EJ review. Others, to the contrary, said the NRC was overly narrow in its interpretation of legal authority regarding EJ issues and public health and safety, and suggested that NRC was just giving lip-service to EJ principles.

Comments: (1-8-1) (1-11-1) (1-12-1) (5-7) (9-2) (10-1) (10-3) (10-4) (10-5) (10-6) (10-7) (10-8) (18-1) (22-1) (22-2) (23-2) (26-6-2) (26-7-2) (26-24-3) (26-25-6) (26-29-1) (35-1) (35-21) (39-21-2) (42-3) (45-1) (46-4-6) (46-6-5) (46-6-14) (47-5) (48-3) (50-2) (51-5) (51-6) (52-6) (55-7) (67-1) (71-2) (73-2) (101-1)

B.2 Proposed Changes that Would Benefit EJ Communities and Tribal Nations in EJ-Related Engagement Efforts

B.2.1 Broadband

Comment Summary: Many commenters stated that EJ communities do not often have broadband, making it difficult to interact with the NRC, find out information regarding public meetings, participate in virtual public meetings or view slides presented during virtual meetings. Other commenters expressed concern about not being able to participate in meetings scheduled during the pandemic, during the workday, or because they live in areas distant from cities or do not have good access to e-mail. Commenters also requested that the NRC be sensitive to language barriers. The commenters also questioned how the NRC would effectively engage with EJ communities when the EJ community did not have internet access.

Comments: (1-2-2) (1-2-3) (1-4-1) (1-8-3) (1-9-4) (2-2-2) (2-2-3) (2-8-2) (3-3) (14-4) (26-5-6) (26-19-6) (26-39-1) (59-9) (95-1)

B.2.2 Comment Period Length Not Adequate or about Enough Topics

Comment Summary: Many commenters requested that the comment period for public input to the NRC's EJ programs and activities be extended, and many requested a 4-month extension. Other commenters focused on the timing provided for public comments on NRC actions. One commenter suggested that there be more advanced notice in announcing scoping meetings and that those meetings should occur on multiple days, both during morning and evening hours. Several commenters stated that the public comment period for reviewing NRC licensing actions is not long enough and that there needs to be multiple opportunities for communities to provide comments. Commenters stated that stakeholders require adequate time to interact with the people of the community and collect their input, especially for technically complicated issues. Several commenters stated that safety and security plans for projects should be made publicly available and there should be comment periods on those as well. Some commenters also suggested that the NRC engage with EJ communities at the beginning of the licensing process instead of after the process and focus on developing policies that mitigate or avoid disproportionate impacts on EJ communities.

Comments: (1-9-3) (5-3) (5-12) (6-1) (6-3) (6-4) (6-5) (6-8) (15-1) (16-1) (16-2) (17-1) (19-6) (20-1) (20-4) (20-5) (26-14-3) (26-34-1) (27-11) (37-9) (45-2) (46-6-4) (93-1)

B.2.3 Communicating in Plain Language or a Language Other Than English

Comment Summary: Some commenters expressed concerns with the use of technical jargon and language in public meetings and the need to avoid technical language and present for the lay person, for example, including infographics and public health indicators that the general public can understand. This applies to the content of proposals, applications, rulemakings, amendments, and other proceedings. Commenters suggested plain language summaries be made available to assist in the understanding of relevant documents. They suggested that these include fact-based statements and information concerning the precise location, other facilities in the region, nearby sensitive populations (schools, assisted living, churches, daycare facilities, etc.), environmentally sensitive locations affected, and human health effects. Several commenters noted that meaningful access for individuals who have limited English proficiency should include language assistance through oral and written language services that result in effective communication and should be made available at no cost, address engagement barriers, and include standardized interpretation and translation. Commenters also suggested that vital documents be translated. Commenters suggested that several alternative language options should be incorporated into the public involvement process, while also being cognizant of not making individuals with limited English proficiency feel like they are treated differently. These options include language assistance for public service and radio announcements. In addition, alternative language options should be provided at public meetings by utilizing licensed interpretation and translation services that have experience in translating technical, scientific, and environmental concepts. Attendees requiring interpretation services should be provided with radios and small earpieces or headset receivers, and interpreters should be aware of language justice principles. One commenter suggested Zoom Video Communications with its language interpretation feature or RingCentral, a platform that allows attendees to call a separate line for interpretation services.

Comments: (1-6-1) (2-2-1) (2-6-1) (6-7) (26-31-1) (26-43-1) (27-10) (35-3) (35-4) (35-5) (35-6) (35-7) (35-8) (35-9) (35-10) (35-12) (39-22-2) (40-1) (49-3) (52-2) (52-3) (55-4) (107-4)

B.2.4 Communities and Tribes as Equal Partners

Comment Summary: Several commenters expressed concern that the NRC did not see EJ communities or Tribal nations as "equal partners." Many commenters expressed frustration with "not having a seat at the table" or with not being provided an opportunity or a way to provide meaningful input or participate in the NRC's decisions and affect regulatory outcomes. Commenters suggested that the NRC develop guidelines for public participation such that they are tailored to the type of regulatory action being contemplated. Commenters suggested that the NRC develop specific public engagement plans that include a commitment to engage early and that these plans be made available to the public. Commenters requested that the NRC acknowledge its trust responsibility to Native nations and respect the sovereign status of these nations, and the need to consult with Tribal nations on a government-to-government level as well as on a community level. Commenters also stated that the NRC should focus on "hard-to-reach" communities and that EJ communities and Tribal nations are searching for meaningful engagement with a partnership approach. Some commenters expressed frustration about not being listened to and believe the NRC does not want or value their input. Several commenters felt that the NRC goes through the engagement process taking a "check the box" approach. Some noted that there are distinctions between EJ communities, Tribal nations that are not federally recognized, and those that are federally recognized. Some commenters and Tribal nations thought that the NRC did not do a good job of recognizing those distinctions. Commenters noted that the EJ Policy cannot focus solely on existing Native nation reservations or federally recognized Tribal nations, because there are a diversity of Tribal governments and only a portion of them are federally recognized. Commenters requested that there be communication at all levels of the nuclear plant life cycle, including the risks and cumulative impacts involved. Commenters requested that the NRC provide resources and expand mechanisms for communities to participate in a more equitable manner and not have the burden placed on communities. Commenters also suggested that the NRC update its EJ policy statement.

Comments: (1-1-1) (1-3-4) (1-8-2) (8-1) (9-5) (19-13) (23-3) (26-2-2) (26-3-2) (26-5-5) (26-5-7) (26-5-10) (26-5-13) (26-6-1) (26-6-3) (26-6-6) (26-7-3) (26-9-2) (26-11-1) (26-11-3) (26-14-2) (26-16-2) (26-16-3) (26-16-4) (26-18-1) (26-18-2) (26-18-6) (26-18-7) (26-19-1) (26-19-2) (26-21-2) (26-23-5) (26-23-6) (26-24-1) (26-24-2) (26-25-7) (26-38-1) (26-40-1) (27-7) (31-3) (37-8) (39-24-2) (39-24-3) (39-24-4) (44-2) (44-4) (44-6) (44-8) (45-4) (45-5) (46-2-2) (46-3-1) (46-3-2) (46-3-3) (46-3-4) (47-6) (47-8) (49-4) (54-12) (63-2) (75-4) (75-6)

B.2.5 Financial, Adjudicatory Support, and Consideration of Restitution

Comment Summary: Several commenters expressed concern that Tribal nations and EJ communities do not have the staff or resources to participate in the adjudicatory process or public meetings, and that NRC procedures suppressed public participation by making the adjudicatory process difficult. Many commenters recommended that the hearing process be revised to make it more friendly to the general public or that an office be created to help intervenors with the hearing process. Commenters noted barriers to participation that could be overcome with monetary stipends or compensation. These barriers included the lack of senior and childcare, work schedules, lack of transportation, and the expense of participating in the adjudicatory process. One commenter suggested the NRC provide money to fund citizen or interest group participation for both licensing and rulemaking proceedings. Commenters also requested compensation or restitution for previous environmental injustices and human rights violations, as well as the cleanup of toxic sites. Several commenters suggested that the NRC should be required to fund expert consultation in matters concerning radiation risks that could lead to negative economic effects on the community, including funding for the independent review of policies, rules, regulations, changes, and technical and legal support for EJ communities and Tribal nations.

Comments: (3-4) (19-11) (25-2) (26-5-11) (26-5-12) (26-21-1) (26-28-2) (27-6) (27-18) (34-2) (37-6) (39-7-6) (42-7) (42-9) (45-6) (46-4-1) (46-4-2) (46-4-3) (46-5-5) (46-6-9) (51-11)

B.2.6 Tools for or Ways to Achieve Better Communication

Comment Summary: Commenters stated that they were dissatisfied with the NRC's current communication practices and questioned if the NRC had a way to tailor outreach processes, such as venues and formats, to individual communities, grassroots organizations, governments, elected officials, or other stakeholders. One commenter pointed out the shortfall of the NRC's approach during this EJ review in addressing procedural justice: For example, having two public meetings on the same day, offering no opportunity for people on the West Coast to participate in an evening meeting, publishing the meeting information in the Federal Register too close to the meeting date so would-be participants do not have adequate time to prepare, and "premature closure" of the public comment period. One commenter suggested attendees be allowed to "donate their time" to members that might provide a better representation of their views. One commenter noted that it can be challenging for people to navigate NRC announcements, websites, and links and that the NRC should make it easier for the public to find out about meetings and activities. Another commenter requested that the NRC website have a way for the public to request public meetings. Many commenters suggested providing paper copies such as pamphlets, fliers, and postcards of key documents in appropriate locations, such as at community churches and on billboards. Commenters also stated that the documents should contain easy-to-understand language and infographics. Many commenters provided suggestions for improving communication and outreach with EJ communities and Tribal nations. These include reaching out to each community to establish what communication methods would work for them and the suggestion that the NRC provide more educational content as part of its communications, including the publication of radiation release data from nuclear activities and working with community scientists and educators to help educate communities about nuclear power and safety. One commenter suggested that the NRC hold more listening sessions. Another commenter suggested that NRC staff have cultural sensitivity and awareness training in preparation for consulting and engaging with Tribal nations and consider incorporating traditional ecological knowledge and addressing cultural practices in decision-making. One commenter suggested the establishment of nuclear visitor centers where facts and related context could be made available to the public. Another commenter suggested the NRC provide up-to-date expert-driven information about nuclear energy on the NRC website for public access. Commenters suggested that the NRC establish a public liaison to meet quarterly with the public to advise on EJ issues, providing the public with updates and information about public participation and public participation rights. Another commenter suggested that the hearing process be delayed until NRC staff has reviewed and issued its safety evaluation and environmental impact statement (EIS) or environmental assessment (EA). Commenters encouraged the NRC to hold meetings at places and times that are more convenient for EJ communities, such as evenings and weekends. Another commenter suggested that the NRC provide a representative at community engagement meetings and that meetings be held early in the pre-application process, or upon the request of the community or developer, in order to aid in the efficient use of adjudicatory resources and inclusion of diverse viewpoints in Commission decision-making. Another commenter suggested that community advisory boards be established. Commenters also suggested that a code of conduct be developed for public meetings to facilitate fair, equal, and respectful engagement. Commenters suggested ways the NRC could improve its internal programs, including increasing the staffing capacity at the NRC Office of Small Business and Civil Rights to improve outreach efforts, and making diversity, equity, inclusion, and accessibility a goal within the agency to improve NRC staff awareness of ways to conduct outreach with EJ communities. One commenter pointed to the NRC's current efforts to conduct outreach with communities regarding the Church Rock project as an example of how the NRC is applying best practices and the NRC should consider continuing to implement these for other sites, but other commenters stated that the Church Rock outreach was inadequate and translations from English to Diné (the Navajo language) was of poor quality. One commenter suggested that the NRC provide technical assistance to communities to enhance the ability of communities to engage and provide input on the NRC's activities. Another commenter stated that the NRC's decisions can be improved by gathering meaningful input from EJ and frontline communities that have unique knowledge and insight.

Comments: (1-2-1) (1-7-1) (1-8-4) (1-9-2) (1-11-2) (2-2-4) (2-4-1) (2-7-1) (2-8-1) (5-5) (5-9) (5-11) (5-16) (6-6) (9-4) (9-6) (14-5) (14-6) (24-1) (26-2-3) (26-11-2) (26-15-1) (26-18-8) (26-19-5) (26-19-7) (27-2) (27-3) (27-8) (29-1) (35-11) (35-19) (35-20) (37-5) (37-7) (37-10) (39-6-3) (39-8-2) (39-10-1) (39-12-2) (45-3) (46-6-7) (46-6-8) (49-1) (50-1) (51-8) (52-4) (54-13) (54-14) (55-5) (56-3) (59-10) (60-1) (75-5) (75-7) (75-8) (80-3)

B.3 Other Proposed Changes to the NRC's EJ Policy and Regulations

B.3.1 Ability to Enforce and Litigate the NRC EJ Policy

Comment Summary: Several commenters expressed concern that NRC EJ policies be more robust, enforceable, and provide for increased opportunities to litigate EJ concerns and issues. One commenter suggested that EJ should be enforceable through the Atomic Energy Act of 1954. Another described the 2004 Policy Statement and the fact that it does not create rights or requirements and should be clarified.

Comments: (10-2) (26-40-2) (36-2) (36-5) (36-7) (39-16-2) (39-16-5)

B.3.2 Creation of an Advisory Panel

Comment Summary: Many commenters recommend that the NRC identify and convene a group of stakeholder and EJ community advisors that includes EJ experts and leaders and that the NRC's EJ Policy be updated to include the establishment of this advisory board. Commenters suggested that a group of advisors develop recommendations to inform the staff's own recommendations to the Commission and suggested that the advisory group develop a list of key questions for which the group would submit recommendations for EJ concerns and engagement. Commenters suggested that the advisory group also develop the "rules of engagement," which determine meeting time tables. One commenter argued that an advisory panel should have legal authority to rule on NRC licensing decisions, similar to the Atomic Safety and Licensing Board. Some commenters recommended that the advisory board members should be paid and consist of geographically and racially diverse members. Some commenters also recommended that members of the community advisory board live within a 10-mile radius of the ongoing or upcoming NRC action, or demonstrate experience in researching, planning, and or implementing procedural justice principles. Other commenters suggested that the NRC have an EJ advisor/advocate position within the agency that would interact with community advisory boards and provide technical assistance and research EJ issues and EJ community needs.

Comments: (5-4) (5-6) (5-13) (5-14) (20-2) (22-3) (26-6-5) (26-7-1) (26-8-1) (26-9-1) (26-19-8) (26-19-9) (26-21-5) (26-22-2) (26-24-7) (26-30-5) (26-36-1) (26-36-3) (27-17) (27-19) (39-4-1) (39-6-1) (39-6-4) (39-7-7) (39-10-4) (39-13-2) (39-15-1) (39-16-6) (39-17-3) (39-22-3) (40-2) (42-10) (46-1-2) (46-4-7) (46-5-2) (46-5-3) (46-5-4) (46-6-3) (51-2) (77-1) (81-1) (107-3)

B.3.3 The National Environmental Policy Act

Comment Summary: Some commenters stated that the NRC's EJ Policy is too narrow and proposed multiple ways for the NRC to improve its EJ analysis within the NEPA context. They proposed that the NRC base its EJ Policy on the Atomic Energy Act of 1954, rather than, or in addition to, NEPA. Some commenters suggested that the NRC incorporate key concepts identified in recent EJ-related Executive Orders such as expanding ways for EJ communities to participate in the NEPA process and analyzing community social and economic benefits, such as power supply, local employment, local tax revenue, reduced pollution, improved transportation infrastructure, and electricity rates. Commenters stated that the NRC should be required to conduct a complete evaluation of a project's effects and not be allowed to break a larger project into smaller components to reduce the impacts. Some commenters simply stated that EAs, generic EISs (GEISs), and programmatic EISs should include an EJ analysis. Several commenters recommended that the NRC should incorporate EJ beyond NEPA requirements, and that a more substantive analysis of impacts on EJ communities could be applied. Some commenters questioned how the EJ analysis should factor into the Commission's decision and were upset that discrimination could be overlooked during the site selection process conducted as part of a licensing application. Another commenter expressed concern that an EJ analysis in an EIS did not look at transportation routes through EJ communities. Another commenter stated that the NRC has the responsibility to advance "procedural justice" and "distributive justice" to improve the ability of marginalized EJ communities to share project benefits, including the creation of high-paying long-term jobs, reduction of greenhouse gases and regulatory roadblocks that slow new projects. One commenter suggested as an example that NRC should consider impacts on Tribal nations' ancestral homelands as part of its EJ analysis. They disagreed that "fairness and equity" are "contrary to NEPA" and disagree with the NRC's position that the new EJ-related EOs create no new regulatory requirements. While many commenters supported using NEPA as a process for its EJ analysis, one commenter suggested that the judicial system struggled with NEPA and that NEPA had been weakened, so the NRC should not continue to use NEPA as its sole guide in protecting people and the environment.

B.3.4 National Environmental Policy Act – Categorical Exclusions

Comment Summary: Commenters expressed concern that categorical exclusions were being used to exclude environmental issues that could affect the health and safety of EJ communities.

Comments: (19-7) (39-18-2)

B.3.5 National Environmental Policy Act – Cumulative Impacts Analysis

Comment Summary: Many commenters requested that the NRC expand their evaluations to include both the direct and indirect cumulative impacts of the full nuclear life cycle from extraction/mining to storage, as well as impacts from radiation, pollutants, and other environmental and psychological stressors. Several commenters expressed a desire to see the NRC assess impacts that include actions taken by other agencies and institutions (such as cumulative air quality impacts in a region) as part of the cumulative impacts analysis.

Comments: (2-5-1) (26-5-2) (39-7-3) (47-2) (47-3) (49-7) (52-5) (55-3) (75-11) (75-15)

B.3.6 Change in Agency Mindset or Top-Down Thinking

Comment Summary: Many commenters stated EJ needed to be a mindset or a philosophy, instead of just a tool. Some commenters proposed a holistic, 360-degree view of nuclear energy, in which EJ principles would be incorporated into every aspect of the NRC, not just licensing actions or NEPA reviews. Other commenters emphasized that other agencies and departments with joint responsibility need to be part of the development of holistic strategies and strategic plans that focus on strengthening mechanisms for interagency cooperation to help the Federal government address its EJ obligations. Other commenters suggested that the NRC devote resources toward internal changes within the agency, including providing diversity, equity, and inclusion training, to change NRC-wide staff mindsets about EJ and engaging with EJ communities. Commenters recommended that the NRC drop linear no-threshold and as-low-as-reasonably achievable from their guidance on radiation protection processes and that the NRC adopt a more evidence-based model for assessing radiation risk. One commenter stated that the methods and assumptions the NRC used for assessing the consequences of radiological releases were inherently discriminatory. Another commenter stated that NRC promoted discriminatory outcomes for estimating the economic consequences of nuclear accidents based on high-income people and property values. Many commenters suggested that NRC re-evaluate the level of detail and variables included in human health and risk analysis.

B.3.7 Free, Prior, and Informed Consent

Comment Summary: Many commenters discussed the need for free, prior, and informed consent in siting considerations, project activities, and decommissioning. Another commenter stated that a Tribal government should be given the right to veto any and all proposals within the bounds of their traditional Tribal homeland.

B.4 Proposed Ways to Identify EJ Communities

Comment Summary: A few commenters noted outdated thinking about the identification of EJ communities and that the use of census data does not necessarily show the true social, economic, or racial makeup of communities. One commenter directed the staff's attention to the White House Environmental Justice Committee and its report on Justice 40 regarding recommendations for defining disadvantaged communities, while another stated that it was critical to ensure the most appropriate data were used to avoid overlooking communities. Many commenters pointed to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) EJSCREEN as an effective tool. One commenter recommended creating community advisory boards, while another recommended working with state agencies to accomplish the collection of demographic data. Commenters noted that impacts on geographical areas do not necessarily stop at state or county lines, and identification of EJ communities could be supplemented by spatially granular data, public outreach, and field investigation methods. One commenter proposed that the NRC disaggregate an action's effects, such as cost, benefits, or risks, by subpopulation to highlight the burden that an EJ community would be expected to bear.

B.5 Other EJ Programs for the NRC's Consideration

Comment Summary: A few commenters directed the staff to other EJ programs and policies (those outside of Federal, State or Tribal purview) that the NRC could consider as it evaluates its own EJ policies and procedures during its review. The programs include those that have identified devoted staff, actively conduct outreach with stakeholders, create jobs, provide educational opportunities, create community-based agencies/organizations, provide grants, provide science, technology, engineering, and mathematics funding, and the Nuclear Energy Institute's Environmental Justice Principles put forth by the nuclear industry. Commenters noted communication and outreach methods used by Xcel Energy to engage with the Prairie Island Indian Community. Some commenters pointed to other EJ-related efforts and programs undertaken by various entities such as the Climate Justice Alliance, the Climate Reality Project, the New England Environmental Justice Research Network, Beyond Nuclear, Nuclear Information and Resource Services, Fairewinds, and the Citizen Awareness Network. Commenters also recommended that the NRC consider a metrics-based approach for measuring the success of its participation programs as suggested by the New York State Energy Research and Development Authority and work with university programs that focus on environmental law, such as the Vermont Law School, as well as consider providing resources for communities to participate, similar to the Canadian Participant Funding Program established by the Canadian Nuclear Safety Commission.

B.6 Federal, State, or Tribal Programs for the NRC's Consideration

Comment Summary: Several commenters noted the need for staff to talk with other Federal, State, or Tribal government staff and pointed to EJ programs or policies that the NRC could consider as it evaluates its policies and procedures during its review. Many commenters mentioned EPA's tools and programs, including EJSCREEN, the Regional Tribal Operations Committee, and other outreach and engagement methods. Commenters also mentioned the White House Environmental Justice Advisory Council; the Justice 40 Initiative from Executive Order 14008; Executive Orders 13985, 13990, 14030, 14035; the Environmental Justice for All Act; the Environmental Justice Interagency Council; and the Interagency Working Group for Environmental Justice. Commenters also mentioned the Department of Justice's Radiation Exposure Compensation Act, the U.S. Department of Energy's Blue Ribbon Commission on America's Nuclear Future regarding intraregional and intergenerational equity, and the Obama Administration's Clean Power Plan. Commenters directed the staff's attention to the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission's Senior Counsel for EJ and Equity, its "Proceedings on its Office of Public Participation and Natural Gas Infrastructure Certification Policy Statement” for guidance on facilitating meaningful participation with EJ communities. The States of Massachusetts, Virginia, North Carolina, and South Carolina were mentioned as having EJ programs and EJ geographic information system tools, along with mention of the New York State Energy Research and Development Agency and the New York Climate Act, and how the NRC may find the definition of disadvantaged communities used in the Act useful in expanding how the NRC identifies and defines EJ communities.

B.7 Effective Current Policy

Comment Summary: Some commenters stated that they thought that the NRC’s overall EJ framework was sound. Some commenters noted that the NRC staff, Atomic Safety and Licensing Board judges, and Commissioners did a good job of conducting meaningful inquiries to be protective of public health. Some commenters noted that the NRC has a detailed framework in place for identifying, evaluating, and addressing EJ issues and that EJ impacts are being addressed in generic environmental impact statements, such as NUREG-1910. However, commenters did generally acknowledge that there was room for enhancements in the current approach for identifying EJ communities and engaging with EJ communities as well enhancements in the current EJ Policy. One suggestion included clarifying the relationship between the NRC’s EJ Policy, Tribal Policy, and the Tribal Protocol Manual.

Comments: (46-6-11) (54-2) (54-5) (54-7) (54-8) (74-1) (78-1) (78-2) (78-4)

B.8 General Support for Doing This Review

Comment Summary: Commenters expressed general support of and appreciation for the NRC’s current effort to review its EJ practices. Some commenters expressed appreciation for being able to participate and applauded the NRC’s effort to do outreach and include EJ more fully in its policies. Some of the reasons cited for support also included the value and importance of EJ, and the current administration’s EJ-related objectives.

Comments: (1-3-1) (1-3-3) (1-3-6) (5-1) (5-15) (6-2) (14-1) (26-3-1) (26-5-14) (26-25-2) (27-21) (31-1) (36-1) (37-16) (39-3-1) (39-3-4) (39-9-1) (39-9-2) (39-17-4) (39-20-1) (40-6) (42-1) (42-2) (45-13) (46-1-1) (46-4-5) (49-9) (51-1) (51-12) (54-1) (56-1) (58-1) (62-1) (63-1) (64-1) (72-1) (80-1)

B.9 General Support for Changing How the NRC Considers EJ

Comment Summary: Several commenters expressed generic support for changing, improving, or expanding the way the NRC implements its EJ activities due to the historical exposure to pollution, toxins, and radioactivity and disproportionate impacts on Tribal nations and EJ communities, and proposed the NRC acknowledge its past violations of EJ. Some commenters stated that EJ policies should be reviewed on a regular basis using the best scientific data and a comprehensive understanding of effects, and that procedural and substantive protections should be put into place.

Comments: (5-8) (5-10) (5-17) (7-1) (19-1) (19-5) (23-1) (25-3) (26-1-1) (26-1-2) (26-5-1) (26-6-4) (26-19-12) (26-22-1) (26-25-1) (26-38-3) (27-15) (32-2) (33-1) (34-1) (36-3) (38-1) (39-7-1) (39-8-1) (39-10-2) (39-11-1) (39-16-4) (39-21-3) (39-22-1) (39-23-1) (42-11) (45-8) (46-6-2) (50-5) (64-2) (68-1) (72-2) (72-4)

B.10 Other Concerns Not Directly Related to EJ

Comment Summary: Several commenters noted NRC regulations and policies that are outside the confines of the staff's review of how the agency addresses EJ. Some commenters expressed dissatisfaction with Class C Waste being called low-level waste and worried that the waste would end up in an unregulated landfill. Some commenters proposed that the NRC, instead of industry, should be responsible for conducting materials testing and structural evaluations. One commenter recommended the NRC require emergency response plans for all facilities with no allowances for exemptions. Some commenters proposed that the safety review process be available to the public. One commenter suggested that the NRC provide briefings to communities where reactors are being proposed that include details about job creation and economic development. In addition to that request, several commenters requested increased funding and staffing for the FOIA Office and the Office of Small Business and Civil Rights within the NRC to help with public information requests. Commenters stated that responses to FOIA requests were an important tool, but requests took too long. Commenters also requested that the NRC correct misinformation expressed by members of the public in public meetings. In addition, commenters expressed frustration with the accessibility of the NRC's ADAMS tool. They stated that they did not understand how titles and information were entered into the system and it was difficult to look up documents and access information, making it an impediment to EJ communities and Tribal nations wishing to participate.

Comments: (1-9-1) (1-10-1) (12-1) (26-19-11) (26-21-3) (26-24-5) (26-24-6) (26-26-3) (26-26-4) (26-26-5) (26-30-1) (26-30-3) (26-30-4) (26-30-6) (26-33-1) (26-33-2) (26-36-2) (26-38-5) (26-38-7) (27-13) (39-7-5) (39-7-8) (39-10-3) (39-13-1) (40-4) (40-5) (42-4) (42-6) (42-8) (42-12) (49-2) (50-3) (54-15) (55-1) (58-4) (62-3) (62-4) (74-3) (76-1)

Comment Summary: Many commenters presented questions or concerns that are not related to this specific review of how the agency addresses EJ. Commenters expressed concerns about school curriculum, school funding, and voter registration. Commenters expressed general concerns about decommissioning regulations and uranium mining, nuclear fuel fabrication facilities, nuclear power plants, or nuclear waste disposal facilities. Commenters also raised concerns about issues related to the general support of or opposition to nuclear power, climate change, renewable energy sources, fossil fuels, nuclear weapons, nuclear waste transportation, and Agreement State, Department of Energy, or Pentagon policy not related to EJ practices presented for the NRC's consideration. Commenters also expressed concerns about the import or export of nuclear waste or materials, security, and terrorism. Some commenters noted general safety and environmental concerns at various facilities, such as the White Mesa Mill, the Columbia Fuel Fabrication Facility, the Consolidated Interim Storage sites, Private Fuel Storage, the Utah Associated Municipal Power Systems Carbon Free Power Project, the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant, the Savannah River Site, the Zion Nuclear Generating Station, and the Indian Point Energy Center. Commenters also stated concerns with Congressional requirements or the appropriation of funds by Congress.

C. List of Commenters

The following tables present the comments received by the staff and identify the commenters.

Table C-1 provides a list of commenters who provided unique comment submissions (i.e., non-form letter submissions) identified by name, affiliation (if stated), the correspondence identification (ID) number, the comment source, and the ADAMS Accession Number. Table C-2 lists the commenters who submitted all or part of the form content generated by the Miami Waterkeeper organization (ML21277A033). Table C-3 lists the commenters who submitted the form content similar to Accession No. ML21302A180. Commenters who submitted both unique and form content are listed in more than one table.
