

Jessica Bock

Jessica Bock is the Cable & Transformer Programs Engineer at the Callaway nuclear plant. She received her electrical engineering degree from Missouri University of Science and Technology. She has 10 years of electrical engineering experience in the fields of nuclear, substations, and design. Since July 2020, Jessica has supported EPRI with a pilot on leveraging risk insights on medium voltage cables in scope of the license renewal inaccessible non-EQ cable aging management program.