

PUBLIC SUBMISSION

As of: 5/25/23, 5:09 PM
Received: May 24, 2023
Status: Pending Post
Tracking No. li2-3k9l-oggq
Comments Due: July 18, 2023
Submission Type: Web

Docket: NRC-2022-0218
Reporting Nuclear Medicine Injection Extravasations as Medical Events

Comment On: NRC-2022-0218-0004
Reporting Nuclear Medicine Injection Extravasations as Medical Events

Document: NRC-2022-0218-DRAFT-0015
Comment on FR Doc # 2023-08238

Submitter Information

Name: Dr. Richard Harvey
Address:
Buffalo, NY, 14263
Email: richard.harvey@roswellpark.org
Phone: 716-845-1048

General Comment

If extravasations are detected on the day of administration and mitigation performed then I believe we can avoid most if not all tissue reactions or biological effects. All facilities need to be prepared to handle these occurrences. Identifying events the day of will take the burden off patients and they do need to be provided with information as well as care. Patient safety is our most important responsibility but making this a medical event, in my opinion, will not provide much benefit.