NRC Names New Chief Financial Officer

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission today announced the selection of Howard K. Osborne as the agency's new Chief Financial Officer, effective April 23, 2023.

Osborne comes to the NRC from his position as Associate Partner with IBM's Business Transformation Services, Federal Enterprise Strategy Practice. Before joining IBM, Osborne held the Senior Executive Service position of Associate Chief Financial Officer at the Environmental Protection Agency. There, he developed an IT governance structure to effectively implement modernization strategies and drive operational efficiencies through process improvement.

"Howard brings strong budgetary experience and discipline to this important NRC role, with a proven record of versatility and financial stewardship," said NRC Chair Christopher T. Hanson. "He is a high-performance, motivated executive, successful at building collaborative relationships. I welcome him to our agency."

Previously, Osborne served as the Comptroller and the Director of Financing Operations at Bureau of the Fiscal Service, Department of the Treasury. During his tenure, he developed the strategy and led the operational and integrated technology testing of the new Treasury Floating Rate Notes security.

Osborne is a retired U.S. Air Force Lieutenant Colonel with over 20 years of active-duty service, which included leading the planning and implementation of a Shared Services organization that delivered the largest transformation in Air Force Financial Management history.

Osborne earned a Master of Science degree in Military Operations from Air University, a Master of Business Administration and Management from Troy State University, and a Bachelor of Science in Economics from Grambling State University.
