

Mr. Marty Malsch is a partner with Egan, Fitzpatrick & Malsch, a law firm with offices downtown on K Street and in San Antonio, Texas. He and his law partners represent the State of Nevada on Yucca Mountain matters. Marty has practiced law in the nuclear field for over thirty five years, most of that time with the Nuclear Regulatory Commission where until 1997 he served variously as Deputy General Counsel, Acting General Counsel, and Inspector General. Marty has degrees in both Law and Physics, is a member of the Connecticut, Virginia, and District of Columbia bars, and has represented a range of nuclear clients in private practice, including nuclear power companies, nuclear waste disposal companies, radiation medicine licensees, and states and foreign countries concerned with nuclear matters.
