

Emma Wong

Emma L. Wong has worked at the Nuclear Regulatory Commission since 2007 in the Chemical Engineering and Steam Generators Branch in the Office of Nuclear Reactor Regulation. She is the lead reviewer on issues related to neutron absorbing materials in the spent fuel pool. Prior to the NRC, she worked on various projects at the Army Research Laboratory. Emma has a BS in Chemical Engineering from the University of Michigan and a MS in Chemical Engineering from the University of California San Diego.