Speaker's Notes

- NRC's Medical Use policy concerning patient-physician relationship
- Medical use of radiation is different
- Impression of overall NRC expertise in medical use
- Medical use is "patient centered" - requires unique regulatory model which understands and respects the culture of healthcare
- Questions to consider when setting reasonable regulatory controls and choosing reasonable measurements of compliance
- Challenge to evaluate:
 - resources in NRC and Agreement State,
 - interaction models used to access medical expertise, and
 - impact of NRC regulations on the patient-physician relationship
